5.2 People Management

The People Management Cycle is based on the We Are TOTVERS culture and represents the three main stages each TOTVS leader must complete when managing teams, practicing meritocracy based on the ARCO - Attitude, Result and Consequence methodology, in all stages of the cycle, as illustrated below:

5.2.1 Attraction

Attraction aims to select the professionals that stick to opportunities the most, considering the potential, the knowledge required and how well the candidate adapts to the company Culture (#WEARETOTVERS). TOTVS adopts people management practices as competitive support elements to attract and retain the best professionals, positioning itself competitively in relation to the market. To accomplish this, it invests in its employment brand and applies a model of compensation and benefits compatible with the market, in addition to offering an environment of ongoing professional development.

The Attraction and Selection process must be governed by a posture of ethics and respect toward professionals, concerned with conveying to candidates an image of transparency and integrity, thus strengthening our employment brand.

The Attraction pillar is composed of actions focused on relationship with the market, educational programs, internal and external recruiting, as well as attraction projects for specific audiences.

5.2.2 Development

The development pillar aims to train and develop TOTVERS for the routine challenges of the company. It is regarded as a key element to keep TOTVS relevant to customers and the technology sector.

TOTVS UNIVERSITY aims to meet strategic challenges and to stimulate the primary role TOTVERS play their self-development. As a company with a passion for technology, TOTVS adopts educational solutions that involve both formal and informal training actions (on-site and long distance), that allow the TOTVER to lead his/her development process.

For strategic definition of training actions, TOTVS uses the 70-20-10 concept, in which:

70% self-development actions through experiences.

20% self-development actions through interactions and exchange.

10% formal self development training actions.

Meritocracy is the main element of the TOTVERs development pillar and has as basis the annual performance evaluation, performed through the 9Box methodology, which consists of formal feedback stages and orients the elaboration of individual development plan and the contracting of yearly goals aligned to company strategy.

5.2.2.1 Succession

TOTVS believes that a well structured succession process guarantees the continuity of company development and of the increased ability to respond to changes both expected and unexpected.

At TOTVS, the successors identification process takes place after the annual performance management cycle, with evaluation and approval by the company's board of directors.

Potential first and second level successors are mapped by the People Area, to identify and accelerate the acquisition of the competences needed for the next step in the TOTVER's career, through closer observation by the leadership and the creation of career opportunities, both actual and planned, taking the TOTVER's competences and aspirations into account.

5.2.3 Engagement

The engagement pillar seeks to enable a motivating work environment that encourages the TOTVER to deliver, by adopting the following mechanisms:

- Organizational climate surveys, which aim to gauge the climate under several company aspects.
- Leadership programs, which seek to develop the people management competence.
- Recognition of the best innovation/improvement projects, more focused on technical areas.
- Elements of compensation and benefits, seeking competitiveness with the market.
- Internal communications, through the promotion of company programs and drivers related to strategy, culture, changes to organization structure, etc.
- Gamification, used as tool to stimulate engagement, training, recognition, incentive and culture assimilation.

5.2.4 Compensation Model

The TOTVER Compensation Model is composed of fixed and variable compensation as well as benefits, in accordance with seniority and the competences for each career level.

For the Board of Directors and other eligible career levels, the variable portion is bound to the meeting of corporate and individual goals set by the company. Moreover, we adopt the practice of Long-term Incentives (LTI), which provides the eligible public with the right to receive company actions, making them partners, to strengthen their long term commitment with TOTVS and the sustainability of the business. The entire
